Teens set great example

On the evening of Sept. 26, we were enjoying a drink and a sandwich at McDonald's on Ross Street. We saw about 15 teenagers entering. It crossed our minds that noise and rowdy behavior were in the making — but this group was orderly, well-behaved and respectful of others.

My 6-year-old niece took our trash to the bin when she accidentally dropped a tray with Coke and ice. It went all over the floor. As she tried to pick up the Coke and the ice, a young man rushed by, grabbed some paper towels and began helping her with the chore; he stayed until the job was completed.

I found two adults who were in charge of these young men. I thanked them and this young man for his assistance. I did not get the young man's name, but did learn they were all from Boys Ranch.

I would appreciate the officials at Boys Ranch informing this young man of how much we appreciate his act of kindness, consideration and helpfulness.
